

Organizational Worktools

Space to work in is one thing.
But space that really works is something else.

05-0001947

Details delivers that “something else.” Again and again.

Details doesn't expect individuals to adjust to the equipment. We design equipment that adjusts to individuals. And to the many ways they work. Look to Details to provide ergonomic sensibility, to help manage clutter, to organize information, and to improve productivity.

Look to Details to help make the workplace really work...better.

SlatRail, Slatwall or Freestanding:

three basic ways to make workspace really work.

Regardless the application, Organizational Worktools help people do more in less...less space and less time. People need workspace that functions with vitality; space that adjusts to all that they do.

Data-bits:

- Many individuals (34%) lose significant time – more than 15 minutes a day or nearly two hours every week – hunting for lost papers, sorting through messy files and re-booking missed appointments.
— National survey reported in Business Wire, Dec. 26, 2006
- More than half (54%) of surveyed workers state that disorganization causes them to forget key things such as deadlines and appointments. And 13% believe disorganization costs them business opportunities.
— National survey reported in Business Wire, Dec. 27, 2007
- One in 20 documents is lost and never recovered
- 80% of filed material is never looked at again
